Your trainer: Sheila Granger I spent many years working as an investigator for the Civil Service, before developing an interest in the 'mind and body' connection following a personal illness that was to be a turning point in my life. Since training as a Hypnotherapist myself I now run one of the busiest practices in the UK based in a GP's surgery, and deliver workshops both in the UK and in the United States. I have had numerous articles written about me in the National newspapers and have appeared on primetime TV on the BBC news. You can read my articles by visiting my website www.sheilagranger.com.

I see clients from all walks of life and travelling to see me from all over the UK. Most of my referrals come from word of mouth and local GP's. I love to share my knowledge, understanding and absolute passion for 'making a difference' with others who may also have that desire to help others or indeed to help themselves.
